

Dear Chairman Powell and Commissioners,

I am greatly disappointed by the lack of informative television programming. I want accurate informative reporting and information.

Local public affairs programming is virtually non-existent--constituting less than one half of 1% of all local programming. More than half of news broadcasts prior to the 2002 elections did not include a single campaign story. Democracy is at risk when many Americans don't even know basic facts about the candidates or the issues, as was the case in the 2000 elections.

Broadcasters have failed in their obligation to serve the public interest, the FCC should define meaningful public interest requirements that include local civic and electoral affairs programming. At a minimum, broadcasters should air three hours per week of local civic and electoral affairs programming, with at least two hours devoted to substantive election coverage in the six weeks prior to Election Day.

As the elections approach, a well-functioning democracy demands that citizens have access to a diversity of opinions and voices on the choices confronting us.

Sincerely,

Larry Lambeth
